Summary of findings

Overall summary

Trinity Fold is a residential care home providing personal care for up to 50 older people, some of whom are living with dementia. At the time of the inspection there were 46 people using the service.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The service was accessing the government testing scheme.

The service was working with the local authority infection control team and other health professionals to ensure people's needs were met.

The registered manager was open and pro-active in sharing information with friends and family so they understood decisions around visiting and restrictions.

People had been provided with pictorial guides to help them understand the restrictions in place.

Staff supported people to stay in contact with relatives and friends via phone and video calling.

Further information is in the detailed findings below.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to care homes with outbreaks of coronavirus, we are conducting reviews to ensure that the Infection Prevention and Control practice was safe and the service was compliant with IPC measures. This was a targeted inspection looking at the IPC practices the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 5 November 2020 and was announced.
