Summary of findings

Overall summary

Ingleby Care home is a care home providing personal care and accommodation for up to 56 adults, some of who are living with a dementia type illness. At the time of this review 48 people were living at the service. Ingleby Care Home is a detached building set out over two floors. Each floor had their own adapted facilities.

We found the following examples of good practice.

- Systems were in place to prevent people, staff and visitors from catching and spreading infections. There had been no known cases of Covid-19 at the service.
- The home had been adapted to support social distancing. Meal-times had been staggered to reduce the number of people in the dining room. Additional cleaning was being carried out.
- Staff had undertaken training in putting on and taking off PPE, hand hygiene and other Covid-19 related training. A dedicated infection control lead was in place. Staff practices were monitored to ensure the correct procedures were followed. The provider continuously shared important information about Covid-19 to staff.
- Staff supported people's emotional and social wellbeing. People were supported to keep in contact with friends and relatives through telephone calls, social media and outdoor visits via an appointment system. National guidance were being followed to ensure visits took place at a safe social distance.
- The home was following national guidance for anyone moving into the home. Staff worked with people and their relatives to ensure they were aware of isolation procedures should they be needed. People were supported by a dedicated staff team who ensured any feelings of isolation and loneliness were reduced. This included a range of individual social activities and contact with friends and family.
- Infection control audits and checks were carried out. The registered manager spoke positively about the hard work and dedication which staff had shown, which had helped to minimise the impact of the pandemic on people's health and wellbeing.
