Why we carried out this inspection

We carried out this assessment as part of our work to understand how practices are working to try to meet peoples demands for access and to better understand the experiences of people who use services and providers.

We recognise the work that GP practices have been engaged in to continue to provide safe, high-quality care to the people they serve. We know staff are carrying this out whilst the demand for general practice remains exceptionally high, with more appointments being provided than ever. However, this challenging context, access to general practice remains a concern for people.

Our strategy makes a commitment to deliver regulation driven by people’s needs and experiences of care. These assessments of the responsive key question include looking at what practices are doing innovatively to improve patient access to primary care and sharing this information to drive improvement.

How we carried out the inspection

This inspection was carried out in a way which enabled us to spend a minimum amount of time on site.

This assessment was carried out remotely. It did not include a site visit.

The process included:

- Conducting an interview with the provider and members of staff using video conferencing.
- Reviewing patient feedback from a range of sources

Overall summary

- Requesting evidence from the provider.
- Reviewing data we hold about the provider.
- Seeking information/feedback from relevant stakeholders

Our findings

We based our judgement of the quality of care at this service on a combination of:

- what we found when we inspected
- information from our ongoing monitoring of data about services and
- information from the provider, patients, the public and other organisations.

We found that:

- During the assessment process, the provider highlighted the actions they have taken to make improvements to the responsiveness of the service for their patient population.
- The GP survey patient over the last two years had mostly remained below the national average in relation to people's experience accessing the service.
- The percentage of respondents to the GP patient survey who responded positively to how easy it was to get through to someone at their GP practice on the phone had remained below the national average in the last 2 years.
- The percentage of respondents to the GP patient survey who responded positively to the overall experience of making an appointment remained below the national average in the last 2 years.
- The percentage of respondents to the GP patient survey who were very satisfied or fairly satisfied with their GP practice times remained below the national average in the last 2 years.
- On the other hand, we also found the percentage of respondents to the GP patient survey who were satisfied with the appointment (or appointments) they were offered was above the national average in the last 2 years.

Whilst we found no breaches of regulations, the provider should:

- Continue to improve patient access.
- Continue to use information from Family and Friends Test to identify themes and drive improvement.

Details of our findings and the evidence supporting our ratings are set out in the evidence tables.
