Summary of findings

Overall summary

We found the following examples of good practice.

People, staff and visitors to Naseby were protected from risks of infection as policies and staff practices reflected best practice guidance. Visiting was by appointment and safeguards included a rapid Covid-19 test being completed on arrival to ensure visitors had a negative test result. Safe indoor visiting areas included screening between people and their visitors and utilising an external door avoiding non-essential visitor footfall in the building.

The premises and equipment were visibly clean. Cleaning materials had been changed to meet government guidance. Flooring in communal areas had been replaced to enable more effective cleaning to take place.

People and their families had been kept up to date with government guidance including visiting, testing and vaccines. People were involved in decisions and had their consent obtained for testing and vaccination in line with legal requirements.

Risks to people's mental well-being were understood and included part of the pre-admission assessment ensuring a person would be able to cope safely with an initial period of self isolation. Social activities took place each day both in the communal lounge and in people's rooms. Technology had been used to aid contact with families and friends including video calls.

PPE was available throughout the home and in good supply. Regular testing of people and the staff team were being completed in line with government guidance. Staff were up to date with infection, prevention and control training including how to put on and take off PPE safely.

We have also signposted the provider to resources to develop their approach.
