Summary of findings

Overall summary

Park View Care Home is a residential home that provides care to up to 43 people. Some people who use the service live with dementia.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The registered manager had voluntarily closed to admissions so the service could offer all people living there single rooms, rather than using shared rooms, if the need arose.

A small team of staff had been designated to support visitors to the service. This was to make sure staff were very familiar with the safe routines in place to support visits.

The registered manager had made changes to use of the environment to support social distancing.

Staff were using PPE appropriately and there were adequate stocks available.

PPE stations had been set up throughout the home including in people's bedrooms.
