Summary of findings

Overall summary

Anya Court is a residential care home providing personal care for up to 71 people of all ages. At the time of our inspection visit there were 41 people at the home.

Anya Court accommodates people in one building, divided into three separate units. Each unit had communal spaces such as lounge areas and dining areas. The home also had communal spaces in the centre of the building for everyone to share including a coffee lounge and cinema. There were garden spaces and visiting suites available outside the main building for people and their families to use. People at the home had en-suite facilities in their bedrooms.

We found the following examples of good practice.

Visitors were welcomed to the home. Staff were observed to be approachable and caring. The home was clean and welcoming. The provider offered people the use of their coffee lounge, where snacks and drinks were on offer to everyone in the home including visitors.

People received regular visits from their relatives and friends, in accordance with government guidance. The provider had built visiting suites and developed garden areas to encourage visitors to see their relatives in a safe environment where they could exercise social distancing. However, the provider also encouraged people to visit their relatives in their bedrooms and communal areas of the home whenever this was possible.

The provider offered families the opportunity to undertake training in how they could support their relatives when they visited, and in the role of an essential care giver.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to the COVID-19 pandemic we are looking at how services manage infection control and visiting arrangements. This was a targeted inspection looking at the infection prevention and control measures the provider had in place. We also asked the provider about any staffing pressures the service was experiencing and whether this was having an impact on the service.

This inspection took place on 16 February 2022 and was announced. We gave the service 24 hours' notice of the inspection.
