Summary of findings

Overall summary

Templefields is a residential care home providing personal and nursing care to autistic people and/or people with learning disabilities. The service is registered to provide support to up to 14 people. There were 11 people using the service at the time of our inspection. People live in either the main house or coach house.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The registered manager had a system to monitor covid testing and test results efficiently.

People were supported to continue their interests during the national lockdown such as arts and crafts and music.

The registered manager and the provider were exploring ways to enable people to see their relatives over the upcoming festive period. People had previously been supported to see relatives outside during the summer months.

Cleaning schedules were in place which were supported by the whole staff team. High touch areas were cleaned regularly throughout the day. These measures helped to reduce the risk of transmission of coronavirus.

People had their temperatures taken throughout the day to monitor any changes. This helped to reduce the risk of transmission of coronavirus.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to care homes with outbreaks of coronavirus, we are conducting reviews to ensure that the Infection Prevention and Control practice was safe and the service was compliant with IPC measures. This was a targeted inspection looking at the IPC practices the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 4 December 2020 and was announced.
