Summary of findings

Overall summary

The Parklands Care Home is registered to provide accommodation and personal care for up to 40 older people, some of whom are living with dementia. There were 29 people living at the home on the day of our inspection.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The service was accessing the government testing scheme which assisted them to identify an outbreak quickly. The service worked with the local authority infection, prevention and control (IPC) team and other health professionals in managing the outbreak.

There were clear infection prevention signage at the point of entry and throughout the home and clear communication with staff reinforced hygiene practices.

Staff told us they had a plentiful supply of personal protective equipment (PPE), such as disposable masks, gloves and aprons. There were PPE stations and hand sanitising points throughout the home.

People isolating in their rooms had regular contact with staff who wore personal protective equipment (PPE) appropriately. Staff also helped people to maintain links with their family and friends.

Further information is in the detailed findings below.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to care homes with outbreaks of coronavirus, we are conducting reviews to ensure that the Infection Prevention and Control practice was safe and the service was compliant with IPC measures. This was a targeted inspection looking at the IPC practices the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 3 December 2020 and was announced.

Is the service safe?
