Summary of findings

Overall summary

William Morris House is a specialist residential college providing accommodation and personal care for up to 35 young people with a learning disability or autistic spectrum disorder. People attended the college either during term time, or a full time 52-week placement. There were 22 people using the service at William Morris House at the time of the inspection.

We found the following examples of good practice

- The service was clean and free of malodour. There was a cleaning schedule in place to ensure that all areas of the service were cleaned.
- The service had implemented personal protective equipment (PPE) stations which were situated near the main entrance and throughout the home.
- Visitors were supported by staff to ensure they followed safe infection control, PPE guidance and to check whether they had any symptoms of coronavirus before entering the home. This included taking the visitor's temperature.
- People were supported to receive regular testing for Covid-19. Where people went home or left the service for any period of time, the service had procedures in place to test people before they returned to the service.
- Staff were compliant with weekly testing requirements and the registered manager ensured test results were followed up when not received. When unclear results had been received, the registered manager and provider sought and followed advice from PHE.
- Individual risk assessments had been conducted on staff which identified any vulnerabilities they may have in relation to coronavirus and any mitigating action that the provider needed to implement.
- The service had appropriate infection control policies and procedures in place. These had been developed in line with current government guidance. There was signage around the service for staff and visitors on what measures were being taken to minimise the risk of spread of infection. These messages were also being communicated through easy read formats, email and on the provider's website.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

This was a targeted inspection looking at the infection control and prevention measures the provider has in place. As part of CQC's response to the coronavirus pandemic we are conducting a thematic review of infection control and prevention measures in care homes.

This inspection took place on 26 November 2020 and was announced. The service was selected to take part in this thematic review which is seeking to identify examples of good practice in infection prevention and control.
