Summary of findings

Overall summary

Wraysbury House is a residential care home providing personal care for up to 30 older people. People were living with a range of needs associated with older age and some people were living with dementia. There were 27 people living at the service on the day of our inspection.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The service was clean and tidy and specific processes were followed to ensure all cleaning tasks were consistently completed. This included frequent disinfection of areas which were regularly touched, for example, door handles and handrails.

Hand-washing facilities were available, and visitors had their temperatures taken and completed a questionnaire before entering the service. Personal protective equipment (PPE) was available throughout the service.

The registered manager and staff completed detailed risk assessments for both people living at the service and staff to ensure their safety. The registered manager had a full record of test results for people and staff. The registered manager also worked closely with other stakeholders, such as the Local Authority and Public Health England.

Staff were wearing appropriate PPE in-line with government guidelines. Staff had completed infection prevention and control (IPC) training. The registered manager had undertaken additional IPC training to support staff with best practice.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to care homes with outbreaks of coronavirus, we are conducting reviews to ensure that the Infection Prevention and Control practice was safe and the service was compliant with IPC measures. This was a targeted inspection looking at the IPC practices the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 27 January 2021 and was announced.
