Summary of findings

Overall summary

Sherwood is a residential care home providing personal care for up to six older people. At the time of the inspection, three people were living at the home.

We found the following examples of good practice:

Staff wore appropriate personal protective equipment (PPE) in line with the Government guidance, to ensure people were protected as much as possible from the risk of cross infection. PPE was easily accessible in various places around the home. Staff had received training in infection control, COVID-19 and how to put on and take off PPE safely.

The home was clean and records showed that enhanced cleaning was being completed regularly throughout the home.

There were clear processes in place for visitors to the service. They were screened for COVID-19 symptoms on arrival and were required to wear appropriate PPE and maintain social distancing during their visit. The provider was facilitating visits in line with the Government guidance and understood how important this was to people living at the home and their families.

Staff and people living at the home were being tested regularly, to ensure that appropriate action could be taken if anyone contracted the COVID-19 virus.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider was meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to the COVID-19 pandemic we are looking at the preparedness of care homes in relation to infection prevention and control. This was a targeted inspection looking at the infection control and prevention measures the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 25 March 2021 and was announced.
