Summary of findings

Overall summary

Cloverdale House is a care home registered to provide accommodation and personal care to a maximum of 11 adults with learning disabilities. There were 11 people living at the service during our inspection.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The environment had been adapted to encourage social distancing. Communal areas were arranged to enable appropriate spacing between people.

The home was clean and tidy. Staff worked through all parts of the home to maintain cleanliness and good infection control. This included regular cleaning of areas which were frequently touched, for example door handles.

Staff were seen to be wearing appropriate personal protective equipment (PPE), and there was a plentiful supply evident throughout the home.

Through the use of easy read documentation and innovative activity workshops, staff had helped people understand the impact of COVID-19 and how they could do their best to protect themselves.

The provider had policies and procedures for infection prevention and control, which were understood and followed by staff. All staff had received additional training in infection prevention and control and had completed regular competency checks.

Staff and people were fully engaged in the appropriate COVID-19 testing regime. The test results were clearly displayed in a folder which was checked regularly by staff to ensure the frequency of tests and results were monitored and correct.
