Summary of findings

Overall summary

Aquarius Lodge is a residential service providing accommodation and personal care for up to 17 people over 65 years of age, some of whom are living with dementia.

We found the following examples of good practice.

- Staff had changed their shifts to minimise the number of people in and out of the service. Staff had completed training on COVID 19 and infection control including in depth distance learning.
- Staff received training in how to use personal protective equipment (PPE) correctly. On the day of inspection staff were using PPE in line with guidance. The registered manager told us they had a good supply of PPE available at all times.
- When people had loved ones or friends they could plan window visits. Staff supported them to make video or phone calls. A summer house had been erected in the garden to provide a safe space for people to have visitors, once permitted under government guidance.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to the coronavirus pandemic we are looking at the preparedness of care homes in relation to infection prevention and control. This was a targeted inspection looking at the infection control and prevention measures the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 12 February 2021 and was announced.

Is the service safe?
