Summary of findings

Overall summary

Glebe Farm is a residential care home providing both personal and nursing care for up to 9 people, who have a learning disability and/or autism. There were 7 people living at the service at the time of our inspection.

We found the following examples of good practice.

Visitors to the service had their temperature taken and wore personal protective equipment (PPE). Visitors who were not regularly tested for COVID-19 as part of a testing programme were asked to undertake a Lateral Flow Test (LFT) before entering the building. These tests take 30 minutes to receive a result.

The service had an ample supply of PPE. All staff had received training in the correct use of PPE, and how to take it off and put it on safely.

People were supported to have regular contact with their families and friends either through 'socially distanced' visits outdoors or through video and telephone calls.

Regular COVID-19 testing for all people and staff living and working in the service was regularly carried out.

The building was clean and free from clutter. Cleaning of the service, including frequently touched surfaces, had increased to reduce the risk of transmission of infection.

Risks to people and staff in relation to their health, safety and wellbeing had been thoroughly assessed. The service layout ensured that staff did not mix, as staff were allocated to work with one person in their self-contained 'apartment'. This reduced the risk of potential infection transmission between people living at the service and between staff members.

The five questions we ask about services and what we found

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to the coronavirus pandemic we are looking at the preparedness of care homes in relation to infection prevention and control. This was a targeted inspection looking at the infection control and prevention measures the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 04 March 2021 and was announced.
