Summary of findings

Overall summary

Parkview Care Home can accommodate up to 88 people some of whom live with dementia. At the time of this visit 66 people were living at the home.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The provider supported people to maintain links with family and friends. Visitors were able to use a visitors' pod that enabled them to see people without increasing the risk of spreading infections. Visits were pre-booked and restricted to half an hour and the area was deep cleaned between visits. Hand sanitiser stations were available throughout the home.

The provider had appropriate arrangements to help prevent the spread of Covid 19 for visits to people at the end of their lives. Visitors were required to wash their hands, have their temperatures taken and complete a Covid 19 risk assessment, which included screening for symptoms of Covid 19, before being allowed to enter the home.

The provider had appropriate arrangements to test people and staff for Covid 19 and was following government guidance on testing. This ensured people and staff were tested for Covid 19 so appropriate action could be taken if any cases were identified.

The provider ensured all their staff received appropriate training and support to understand and manage Covid 19. This included best practice for infection control and the use of PPE.

Staff also received appropriate guidance on how to support people with dementia to understand the pandemic and Covid 19. Separate teams of staff were allocated to each floor of the home to reduce the potential spread of infections.

The provider made appropriate support services available to staff in order to support their mental wellbeing through the pandemic and if they became unwell and when they returned to work.

Further information is in the detailed findings below.
