Summary of findings

Overall summary

We found the following examples of good practice.

The registered manager ensured there were effective infection prevention and control (IPC) procedures in place to prevent the transmission of infection; the environment was clean, hygienic and well-maintained.

The staff were provided with the necessary personal protective equipment (PPE), PPE stock levels were well managed, and staff were observed wearing the appropriate PPE during the inspection.

The registered manager ensured that staffing levels were effectively managed and careful consideration was given to the deployment of staff. Consistent staff were allocated to specific 'units', meaning there was less cross over of staff across the units within the home.

Regular testing was in place for people living at the home and staff who worked there. The most vulnerable people and staff had been identified and appropriate support measures had been implemented.

Relatives were supported to maintain regular contact with people who lived at the home. For example, visits were taking place for people and their relatives with a designated visiting area with perspex protective covering, safety measures were in place. Also a 'visiting pod' was to be completed in February; the pod had been designed to help facilitate socially distanced visits between people and their loved ones. Other contact practices were in place including video calls.

The registered manager ensured that the most recent / relevant COVID-19 policies, procedures and guidance were effectively communicated; staff confirmed that they were fully informed and updated on the most recent COVID-19 arrangements.

We were assured that this service met good infection prevention and control guidelines as a designated care setting.
