Summary of findings

Overall summary

Rosehill care home is a residential care home providing personal and nursing care for up to a maximum of 40 people in one adapted building. At the time of inspection there were 36 people living at the service, some of whom were living with dementia.

We found the following examples of good practice.

- Systems were in place to screen any visitors before they entered the home to reduce the potential spread of infection.
- Staff wore personal protective equipment (PPE) and there was sufficient PPE around all areas of the home. Staff had training in infection prevention and control measures and PPE.
- Changes had been made to the layout of furniture to support people to maintain social distance. The home had zoned areas of the home to reduce the spread of infection during the recent outbreak.
- Regular testing for Covid-19 was in place for people and the staff team.
- The home looked clean and housekeeping staff made sure they frequently cleaned touch points, such as door handles and light switches.

Further information is in the findings below.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to care homes with outbreaks of coronavirus, we are conducting reviews to ensure that the Infection Prevention and Control practice was safe and the service was compliant with IPC measures. This was a targeted inspection looking at the IPC practices the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 4 February 2021 and was announced.
