Summary of findings

Overall summary

Glenview Nursing Home is a care home providing nursing and personal care for up to 40 older people. At the time of our inspection there were 38 people living at the home.

We found the following examples of good practice.

People we spoke with told us, "Yes I feel safe" and "I have no concerns". Another person told us that they were looking forward to going out the weekend with family. They planned to go out for a meal when the homes isolation period had ended. The registered manager told us another person liked to go out regularly but was unable to due to the outbreak. They were able to spend time in the garden during the outbreak which they enjoyed.

People were supported to order items online whilst they were unable to go out. This included takeaways, clothes and personal items.

There was a clear process for visitors, which included a temperature check and the wearing of PPE. They were required to take a lateral flow COVID-19 test with a negative result before entering. Where people were isolating the use of phone calls were utilised to promote contact with family members.

Visitors were required to sign in and they had to show a negative lateral flow test. The vaccination status was checked for health and social care professionals and contractors. This was in line with legislation that had come into effect in November 2021.

People were supported to see friends and family in accordance with government guidance. Some relatives were the named essential carer givers for their loved one. This meant they will still able to visit during the outbreak at the home. In order to be an essential care giver, set procedures were followed. This included participating in regular testing for Covid.

The home was cleaned regularly and this was monitored through audits and checks. There were staff on duty during our inspection, carrying out cleaning duties.

The home took part in regular testing for COVID-19. The registered manager maintained an audit of the dates staff and people were last tested. The registered manager told us all staff had been double vaccinated. Some staff had received booster vaccinations and others planned to have this when they were able to. The Covid passports of staff had been checked by the management team.

The registered manager told us they had not experienced any workforce pressures during this outbreak. We were told the staff team picked up extra hours as overtime, but this was monitored to ensure staff were not over worked.
